

EUROPEUM Institute for European Policy and Pew Research Center would like to invite you to a presentation followed by a discussion on the topic:

The Value of Europe – What Do We Think about the Past, Present, and Future of Europe

Wednesday October 23, 2019 from 16:30 to 17:45
University of Economics in Prague, Old Building, Room SB 240
Náměstí W. Churchilla 4, Prague 3

Presentation: Jacob Poushter, Associate Director, Pew Research Center

Reflection:

- Vladimíra Dvořáková, Professor, Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics, Prague
- Magdaléna Vášáryová, Chairwoman of Živena, Slovak Women's Association, Former Slovak Diplomat and Politician
- Jan Hartl, Chairman of the Board, STEM Institute of Empirical Research

Kindly register at bit.ly/PewResearchVSE, or contact us via europeum@europeum.org.

The Pew Research Center will present a report with results of a survey that explores public attitudes about the past, present, and future of Europe in 17 nations, including both Western and Eastern European countries, as well as Ukraine, Russia and the United States. The report also examines attitudes toward democratic rights and institutions, such as a fair judiciary, gender equality, freedom of religion, and freedom of expression. Additionally, it also covers the degree to which people are satisfied or dissatisfied with the functioning of their country's democracy. Furthermore, the report analyzes whether the public in surveyed countries is largely optimistic or pessimistic about a range of issues, including inequality, education, and the functioning of their political system, as well as their country's relationships with the United States and other European nations.

Co-funded by the Europe for Citizens Programme of the European Union