New episode of the Café Evropa podcast | Work opportunities

Welcome to the first December newsletter!

In the past 2 weeks, EUROPEUM has been returning back to normal after the eventful couple of days organising the Prague European Summit. We helped organise the Česko 2030 conference and a number of other online events, such as another instalation of the EU-Pacific talks series themed around charting the course for Ukraine or an event organised by our Brussels office called "Enhancing EU-India relations: A partnership beyond trade."

There are also multiple new work opportunities available, such as an internship in our Brussels office or the position of Communication manager in our main office in Prague. So if you are up for a challenge, why not apply to join our international team here at EUROPEUM?

Our research fellows managed multiple media outputs, such as an interview of Klára Votavová on ČT24 or an article that Kateřina Davidová wrote called "Subsidised fossil fuels are a major obstacle to tackling the climate crisis. The Czech Republic and the world must confront it". For a full list of our media outputs, scroll to the bottom of the email.

Thank you for being with us, we look forward to seeing you in the next newsletter.

Yours, EUROPEUM

Publications

Report | Round table Electromobility and job opportunities: what changes are ahead?

Work opportunities

The EUROPEUM Brussels Office is offering an internship from February 2024 to July 2024.

We are looking for a University student pursuing a master's degree or a bachelor's degree with a focus on international relations etc. Fluent in English both written and oral (proficiency in Czech, French, and/or German would be an advantage). Experience in organizing public events welcomed. For more info, look here.

We are looking for a new Communications Manager for our Prague office with an interest in European issues to join our international team who would bring new impulses to the way we communicate and market our activities externally, take responsibility for them and fully participate in the Institute's activities. We offer a diverse range of work in an area that has an impact on the public debate on European issues in the Czech Republic and elsewhere in Europe. For more info, look here.

Events

The Česko 2030 Conference

The Česko 2030 Conference took place on the 20th November, aimed at the transformation of the energy sector, meaningful investment and social security for Czech society.

Panel topics included financing of the green transformation or social aspects of green transformation in the Czech Republic.

As part of the conference, there was a presentation of the Social Climate Fund and the expected timetable, which foresees a start on January 1st 2026. The fund builds on the objectives of the Green Deal for Europe and the Paris Agreement.
